

① Because Germany and France wanted to conquer Morocco, Germany thought Great Britain would stand by their side because of the trading relationship, but she stood by the side of the French.